COMPUTER COP—PREMIUM EDITION INTERNET SAFETY INITIATIVE

The Roseville Police Department is pleased to provide this ComputerCOP Premium software to assist parents and guardians in their children's online and computer activities as part of a comprehensive home Internet safety plan. The Internet can be a wonderful educational tool. It can also be a dangerous place for children and teens if left unsupervised.

At every age, children require protection and guidance from their parents and guardians. With Internet access so readily available at home, school, and the local library parents must be extra vigilant to know what is happening in their children's "online lives." To assist you this software will allow you to scan your home computer(s) to identify possible dangers to your children.

Predators have no problem finding potential victims online, even posing as children in chat rooms and via instant messaging. They use the Internet's anonymity to access victims. Many children receive sexual solicitations from online predators and never tell their parents. Using computer software monitoring is a personal decision. Please do your part to keep your children safe on the Internet.

Sincerely,

Michael Pachla
Roseville, Police Chief